PREFATORY.

The present volume being the first work of the kind that has ever been issued in Oregon, it cannot be expected that its contents will prove as free from errors and omissions as its originators could desire.

No person, save those who have had experience in similar undertakings, can form the remotest idea of the many difficulties attendant upon the compilation of a work like the present, but now that we have taken the initiatory step towards the introduction of a Directory for FIDE CITY OF PORTLAND, we hope that each recurring year will witness the re-appearance of this volume in a more correct and colarged form.

To the many friends who have aided us in this undertaking, by their patronage—and to 410. A. L. Lovejoy, of Oregon City, to whom we are indebted for many facts relative to the early history of the City—we return our sincere thanks.

HISTORICAL SKETCH OF PORTLAND.

No task can be more pleasing to the historian, than that of tracing the gradual steps which mark the progressive strides of a country, changing its character from an almost unknown wilderness to a cultivated region, teeming with the fruits of the earth, and smiling with happy homesteads. How gratifying it is to take up each link in the chain of events which earries us from the distant past, when Oregon was first settled by the pioneers of American enterprise, down to the present day, when her vast resources are being almost hourly developed, by the same untiring industry which characterizes the actions of every-day life.

The history of Portland is the history of Oregon. A few short years ago, and that vast scope of country embraced within the boundaries of this State was a waste of forest and prairie, known only, to the general reader, as the "Far West," and laid down upon the maps of the day as an "Unexplored Region." But the forests are disappearing before the axe of the settler, and the prairies are yielding rich golden harvests to reward the toiling husbandman. And not alone has prairic and forest been made subservient to the requirements of American enterprise, but the very canyons, creeks, and gulehes, have been made to yield their golden treasures -every artery thus contributing its quota of life-giving fluid towards the successful development of the entire State.

But a few short years have clapsed since the spot where we now behold the young and vigorous city of Portland, and hear the busy hum of Commerce, was a dense forest, whose solemn stillness had never been disturbed by the footfall of civilized man. But the gigantic monarchs of the forest have disappeared, and in their place civilization has caused to arise churches, educational institutions, work-shops, and establishments devoted to the multifarious uses of Commerce. To note the events which have eaused and characterized this change has been our purpose, and we proceed at once to the pleasing duty.

During the month of November, 1843, Hon. A. L. Lovejoy, (at present residing at Oregon City,) and a gentleman named Overton, stepped ashore at this point from an Indian canoe, whilst en route from Vancouver to Oregon City, and having examined the topography of the surrounding country, concluded at once that it was a most cligible position for a town site. Not being prepared, however, to commence clearing away the brush and timber with which their contemplated "claim" was covered, they determined to procure the necessary outfit, tools, and provisions, and return at some subsequent period for permanent settlement. True to their purpose, these hardy pioneers returned during the ensuing winter, and commenced at once to clear off the land, and make preparations for the erection of a log cabin, which they determined to build, on a site they had chosen close to the ravine where at present stands the Portland Saw Mill, in the southern portion of the city. But before they had perfected their arrangements for the completion of their dwelling, Mr. Overton disposed of his interest in the claim to Mr. F. W. Pettygrove, who, in conjunction with Mr. Lovejoy, had the claim surveyed, and the boundaries established during the summer of 1844. During the winter of the same year, Messrs. Lovejoy and Pettygrove hired a man to commence clearing off the timber, and to procure logs suitable for the construction of a dwelling house; but a change was made in the location, the proprietors deeming it more prudent to commence operations nearer the centre of their claim, in preference to improving at the southern extremity. Immediate preparations were made to clear off the ground adjacent to where the Columbian Hotel at present stands, and accordingly a log house was erected on the spot, and occupied by their employee during that winter. The building completed and a portion of the land cleared, the proprietors determined upon having a more accurate survey of their claim, and, in the summer of 1845, Thomas A. Brown was employed to do so, which he did, at the same time laying off a portion of it into streets, blocks and lots-it being agreed between the partners that the lots were to be fifty feet wide by one hundred feet deep, the streets sixty feet wide, with the exception of Water street, (or, as at present known, Front street,) which was to be as near sixty feet wide as the variations of the banks of the river would admit. A plat was accordingly made; and the next thought that engaged the minds of the proprietors was that of choosing a suitable name for the newly born city of the west. Mr. Lovejoy suggested that the place be called Boston, in honor of the capital of his native State, in hopes that at some future time it might rival in commerce and importance the modern Athens. Mr. Pettygrove contended that Portland was more appropriate, inasmuch as it was the head of steamboat navigation and the part where would land all the freight intended for the valley of the Willamette, and all the southern portion of the Territory. In order to decide this "vexed question," it was proposed by Mr. Pettygrove to toss a copper cent, which he had brought with him as a souvenir of his Eastern home; this being agreed to by Mr. Lovejoy, the cent was produced, and, Mr. Pettygrove proving the winner, PORTLAND was adopted as the cognomen of the embryo eity.

During the winter of 1845-6, Mr. Lovejoy, having business at Oregon City which engaged his attention, sold out his interest in the Portland town site claim to Benjamin Stark, and in the following spring several blocks and lots were sold to parties who commenced improvements by the erection of log houses. It was during this period that the first store was erected in Portland at the south-west corner of what is now known as Washington and Front Streets. This store was erected by Mr. Pettygrove, who also during the same year completed a dwelling-house which is at present attached to the Columbian Hotel. In October, 1848, Mr. Pettygrove sold his interest in the Portland claim to Daniel H. Lownsdale, including in the sale a wharf which stood at the foot of Washington Street, and which was built for Mr. Pettygrove in the fall of 1846, by John Waymire, and also a shaughter-house which Messrs. Stark and Pettygrove had be reverted on the bank of the Willamete River.

During the three following years the attention of the residents of Oregon was generally directed to the gold fields of California, and very many enterprising citizens, lured by the glowing accounts that were conveyed hither from time to time by some lucky returned miner or trader, procured their outlits and started off for the rich placers of California, little dreaming they were leaving, far to the north of their destination, mines equally as rich and extensive as those to which they were wending their way. In consequence of this excitement, and the searcity of labor, very little permanent improvements of any kind were extempted to be made throughout Oregon, and Portland shared in the general lethragy that hung like a mist over every enterprise that required labor for its completion. However, during 1850 the place had become of some little importance in the public mind, although it was occasionally styled "a place twelve miles below Oregon City"—this latter town assuming to itself all the importance of the Capitol and Commercial Metropolis of Oregon Territory.

During the earlier part of 1850 the necessity for having a newspaper published at this point, became apparent to the settlers and property owners of Portland, as both Milwaukie and Oregon City were represented by the press-the former having the Western Star to advocate its advantages over every other embryo "city" in the Territory, and the latter place being represented by the Oregon Spectator, a weekly newspaper doing battle for the interests of Oregon in general, but Oregon City in particular. Under these circumstances the people of Portland thought justice to themselves and their property, demanded that they should procure a press through which their interests would be promoted. Accordingly in October of that year, the materials for a printing office were shipped on board the bark Keoka, at San Francisco, but the vessel having experienced head winds and delays on the passage, did not arrive hero until the following month, and the issue of the paper was delaved until December 4th, when the Weekly Oregonian made its appearance, Thomas J. Dryer being editor and proprietor. In the first number of the Oregonian, Portland is described as a town that "has sprung into existence within an incredible short space of time. The buildings, mostly new, of good style and taste, which with their white coats of paint, contrasted with the brown and dingy appearance of towns generally on the Pacific Coast. gives it a most home-like aspect." Alluding to the citizens, the editor says: "The property holders, by their industry and liberality, are manifesting an earnest of the future destiny of the place. The inhabitants, for intelligence and moral worth, are not surpassed by any town in the Eastern States." When we consider the general character bestowed upon the great majority of towns on the Pacific Coast at that carly day, such a commentary upon Portland speaks volumes in its praise.

As evidences of the enterprise which characterized the business men of Portland even in its carliest infancy, we note the fact that in 1850, Mesers. Couch & Co. dispatched the brig Emma Preston, Capt. Van Siee, to Canton, and the steamer Gold Hunter having made a visit to this port, a joint-stock company was forthwith projected and formed for the purpose of purchasing a large interest in the vessel, so as to secure her as a regular steamer between Portland and San Francisco. Although this latter arrangement did not continue in successful operation, nor prove beneficial to the stockholders, yet the enterprise evinced by those concerned in it, deserved better success.

As another evidence of the growing importance of the place, we may mention that St. John's Day, 1850, was duly celebrated by the Masonic Fraternity then resident in or near this city. A procession was formed at the Hall—then located in a wooden building surrounded by stumps and fallen timber—and under the direction of the Marshal of the Day, Mr. Elliott, and preceded by the Military band from Vancouver, marched to the Methodist Church, where an address was delivered by Rev. Horace Lyman, and an oration delivered by T. J. Dryer, followed by the installation of fibers, Lieutenant F. St. K. nessel, U. S. A., acting as W. G. M. In the evening a dinner was partaken of at the California House, on First Street, which has since been torn down to make room for more substantial improvements.

During 1851, Portland took a lengthy stride towards assuming the position of a city.

Many stores, dwellings, workshops, and three clurches, were erected; the Sons of Temperance also organized during this year, and everything connected with the city or its inhabitants, seemed to betoken progress. The Legislative Assembly, of 1850-1, having granted a difactor for the government of the city, the first election for municipal officers was held on the 7th of April, 1851. But little interest was manifested in the result, as there were neither local nor political issues at stake. Hugh D. O'Bryant was elected Mayor by four majority, over J. S. Smith; W. S. Caldwell was elected Recorder, and Robert Thompson, Shubrick Norris, Geo. A. Barnes, Thos. G. Robinson, and L. B. Hastings, City Councilmen. In June following, the Territorial election for Delegate to Congress took place, and as an index by which to judge of the population of Portland at that period, it may not be uninteresting to mention the fact that upon that occasion the vote stood, Lane 162, Wilson 60: showing a total of two hundred and twenty-two voters. During this month, the brig Amazon arrived at Portland from Whampoa, China, being the first arrival direct from the Celestial empire.

For several years, the people of Portland, aided by the farmers of Washington county, had been canvassing the possibility of constructing a good substantial road from this city leading to the Tualitin Plains; but no definite action was taken towards its completion until the fall of 1851, when it was determined to construct a plank road leading through the canyon at the south-western portion of the city. Accordingly, in October, the first plank of this pioneer public work was laid, by Stephen Coffin, and the event was duly celebrated by the citizens on masse, who looked upon the contemplated improvement as one of the most important enterprises in which the people of this portion of the Territory could become interested.

As the prospects of Milwaukie did not seem to brighten, towards the close of 1851, it was deemed prudent to move the printing establishment of the Western Star to Portland, where it subsequently made its re-appearance as the Oregon Weekly Times.

The year 1852 found Portland still enjoying increased prespecity—new buildings were constantly being erected, and commerce was steadily extending its area of operations by the aid of the numerous steamers that were plying on the Columbia and Willamette rivers, the names of which will doubdess sound familiar to mary of the earlier settlers. In June, 1852, the steamer Willamette enrich the U. S. mails between this city and Astoria. This vessel was owned by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, and was sent here for the purpose of connecting with their larger steamers at Astoria, that being the port at which their route ceased. The steamers Lot Withcomb, Multomah, Just P. Flint, Weshington, and Eagle, also plied to different points along the Columbia and Willamette. The Columbia, Black Hawk, and Major Redding, having "seen service," were laid up, and their machinery converted to other purposes.

At the municipal election held during April in this year, A. C. Bonnell was elected Mayor; S. S. Slater, Recorder; and W. P. Abrams, A. P. Dennison, Thomas Pritchard, Abel G. Tripp, and Hıram Smith, Councilmen. Mr. Smith subsequently resigned, and Josiah Failing was elected by the Board to fill the vacancy. Messrs Bonnell, and Slater having resigned their respective positions, an election was held in the November following, at which Simon B. Mayre was elected Mayor, and C. B. Pillew, Recorder. The Board of Aldermen comprised S. Norris, Thomas Pritchard, J. Failing, P. A. Marquam, and A. P. Dennison.

The Territorial Legislature of 1852-3 having amended the charter for this city, it was voted npon and adopted by the citizens of Portland on the 19th of March, 1853; and during the ensuing month an election was held for city officers, at which Josiahi Failing was elected Mayor; A. C. Bonnell, Recorder; S. S. Shater, Assessor; W. H. Barnhart, Treasurer, and Wm. Grooms, City Marshal. A Board of Councilmen were also elected, comprised of the following citizens: Ropert Thompson, W. S. Ladd, Jno. H. Couch, W. P. Abrams, R. N. McLaren, R. M. Field, Chas. B. Pillow, H. W. Davis, and Jonas Williams. The highest vote east upon that occasion was three hundred and thirty. During September, 1853, Mr. Bonnell resigned the office of Recorder, and A. Weisenthal was elected to fill the vacancy.

It was during this year that the first brick stores were erected—W. S. Ladd being the pioneer in this enterprise, Lucien Snow and D. C. Coleman following his example.

At the annual election in 1854, W. S. Ladd was elected Mayor; A. P. Dennison, Reoorder; Thos, Pritchard, Treasurer; Chas, P. Bacon, Assessor, and W. L. Higgins, Marshal. The following citizens were elected as Councilmen: A. M. Starr, Jas. Field, Jr., Shubrick Norris, Thomas Carter, Wm. McMillen, A. D. Fitch, O. J. Backus, A. R. Shipley, and Jas. Turnbull. The highest number of votes cast upon this occasion being four hundred and fifty-eight.

During December of this year, the steam saw mills, belonging to the Portland Milling Company, situated in the southern part of the city, were destroyed by fire, and this disaster materially delayed the progress of the city for several months, in consequence of the scarcity of lumber and other building material at this point.

(5) of minder and control statement of the property of the

A consus of Portland taken during 1855 exhibits to us the fact that the city then contained four churches, au academy, a public school, one steam flour mill, four steam saw mills, four printing offices, two express offices, four doctors' and six lawyers' offices, two dentists, five cabinet shops, three backeries, four stove and tin stores, two tailoring establishments, two lowelers, four blacksmithing shops, one foundry, three wagont makers, six painters, two boat builders, six livery stables, twelve hotels and boarding houses, three butchers, six ashouns, two bowling alleys, one book store, one drug store, one dauguerrean gallery, one shoe store, one candy manufactory, and a few eigar stores. Besides the foregoing, there were twenty-five establishments dealing in dry goods, groceries, &c., together with ten establishments engaged exclusively in dry goods, and seven in groceries only. The total valuation of real and personal property in the city at that time, was assessed at $1,195,031.

The Indian troubles of 1855-6 greatly retarded business of every kind in Portland, and naturally prevented improvements being made upon any scale of magnitude; but with a cossation of hostilities, the city again progressed upon its ouward course.

At the annual charter election held in April, 1856, James O'Neill was elected Mayor; A. L. Davis, Recorder: Thos. A. Savier, Treasurer: Z. N. Stansbury, Assessor; Themas J. Holmes, Marshal. The following citizens composed the Board of Common Council: Rol'd Porter, A. D. Stelly, A. B. Elfeldt, L. M. Starr, W. S. Ludd, William Beck, H. W. Davis, S. M. Sonith and Jas. Burk.

In 1857, Messrs, O'Neill and Duvis were re-elected to their respective offices; T. N. Lakin, was chosen Treasurer; John M. Breck, Assessor, and S. R. Holoomb, Marshal. The following Conscilmen were also elected: John II. Couch, T. J. Holmes, A. B. Hallock, Chas. Hutchins. P. Hardenburg, N. S. Coon, B. F. Goodwin, S. G. Reed, and Jas. M. Blossom. The Assessor's returns for this year exhibit the total valuation of property at $1,103,829, and the p-pulation as follows: males, 765; females, 515., Total population, 1,280.

At the annual charter election in 1858, A. M. Starr was chosen Mayor; Alonzo Leland, Recorder; H. W. Corbett, Treasurer; J. M. Breek, Assessor; S. R. Holeomb, Marshal; and Z. X. Stansbury, Port Warden. The following citizens comprised the Board of Councilmen: Geo. C. Robbins, A. P. Ankeay, C. P. Bacon, T. N. Lakin, R. Porter, T. J. Holmes, J. C. Carson, Win. M. King, and C. S. Kingsley. The highest vote cast at this election was four hundred and sixty.

In 1859, the following municipal officers were closen: Mayor, S. J., McCormick; Recorder, Noah Bulney; Treasurer, J. McCruken; Assessor, Wm. Kapus; Marshal, James H. Lappens; Port Warden, Daniel Wright; Councilmen, A. B. Hallock, J. M. Vansyelds, J. Davidson, A. D. Shelby, M. M. Janes, J. C. Hawthorne, E. D. Shattuck, A. C. R. Shaw and John Bianchard.

On the 18th of April, 1859, the first number of a daily newspaper was issued in this city. It bore the title of Portland Daily News, and was published by S. A. English & Co. 1:

has since ceased to exist, and the material upon which it was printed removed to Eugene City. The advent of the News was quiekly followed by the appearance of the Oregon Advertiser, under the editorial and proprietory control of Alonzo Leland. This paper continued to be published until October, 1862. The material is at present used in the publication of the Evening Commercial. Whilst treating of literary enterprises we may as well state that the first number of the Daily Times was issued on the 19th day of December, 1860, and was followed by the appearance of the Daily Oregonian, on the 4th day of February, 1861.

At the regular charter election in 1860, Geo. C. Robbins was chosen Mayor; O. Risley, Recorder; S. Wasserman, Treasurer; James W. Going, Assessor; and James H. Lappeus, Marshal. The following Councilmen were also elected: J. C. Ainsworth, J. Davidson, A. B. Hallock, A. D. Shelby, M. M. Lucas, W. L. Higgins, A. C. R. Shaw, E. D. Shattuck and Jacob Stitzel. The vote for both candidates for Mayor upon this occasion exhibits the number of persons entitled to vote at the municipal election, at three hundred and two.

In January, 1860, the School Clerk for this District, Mr. J. F. McCey, published a consus of the City, showing the number of inhabitants in the City, and scholars in the District. As it will doubtless prove interesting to trace the gradual increase of population from year to year, we insert the statistics in full.

At the annual city election held on the first Monday in April, 1861, John M. Breck was elected Mayor; O. Risley, Recorder; H. Wasserman, Treasurer; William Grooms, Marshal; and James W. Going, Assessor. The following Board of Councilmen were also elected: John McCraken, A. B. Hallock, F. Harbaugh, Wm. L, Higgins, W. C. Hull, William M. King, E. R. Scott, William Masters and John S. White. Mr. Scott subsequently resigned, and S. E. Barr was elected to fill the vacancy.

During December of this year, Portland, as well as almost every other portion of the Willamette valley, suffered materially through the freshet, which carried off several wharves, and otherwise damaged property along the bank of the river.

At the charter election in 1862, W. H. Farrar was elected Mayor, J. F. McCoy, Recorder, William Grooms, Marshal, H. B. Morse, Treasurer, and R. J. Ladd, Assessor. The Board of Councilmen comprised the following citizens: Thomas A. Davis, Thomas J. Holmes and A. B. Hallock from the First Ward; O. Risley, J. M. Breck and A. P. Denison from the Second Ward; and S. Coffin, C. S Silvers and A. G. Walling from the Third Ward. Some resignations and changes, however, have been since made, which will be found under their proper head in another portion of the work.

During June of this year, much damage was done to property in this place, in consequence of the unprecedented rise of the Willamette River, which overflowed the banks below the gas works, and completely innudated the lower portion of the city.

Having thus traced what may be termed the official history of the city from 1851 to the past year, we proceed to sketch Portland and its surroundings as they are at present, leavpast year, we proceed to skeen I ordana to what they may become in the future, to the reader.

ing at speculation as to state the properties of the properties of Commercially speaking, Bortland is the key to the entire Willamette valley, being the entrepot at which arrives all the merchandise, machinery, and wares of every description consumed or required by the inhabitants of the interior of Oregon, and also by the people of that portion of this State and Washington Territory resident east of the Cascades. The commercial interests of this city extend to every portion of the mining or agricultural regions of Oregon and Washington from the Pacific Ocean to the Rocky mountains, and in almost every enterprise calculated to develop the resources of either this State or Washington Territory, where skill and capital are required to carry out the desired object, the citizens of Portland are foremost in coming forward to aid in such enterprises. In proof of this assertion, we may point with pride to the numerous associations and incorporate companies who have their head-quarters in this city, and whose capital is engaged in creeking bridges, building roads, steamboats and telegraph lines, and in promoting the general interests of the entire Pacific Coast by their laudable efforts,

But a few years since not a solitary steamboat could be seen gliding along the water of the upper Columbia, but the development of the mineral wealth of the vast region extending from the Cascade to the Bitter Root mountains demanded that steamboats should convey merchandise and supplies of every kind to the thousands of miners, mechanics and traders who flocked to the modern El Dorado. The enterprising spirit of business mee was at once aroused, and we now find not only the waters of the upper Columbia, but also of its tributaries, sparkling beneath the revolving wheels of steamboats. And all this has been accomplished within a very few years by the aid of capital which has accumulated through the energies of commercial men.

There are at present nearly twenty river steamers plying from Portland to the various towns along the Willamette and Columbia rivers, together with several occan steamers and sailing vessels that ply between this eity and San Francisco; from this fact readers at distance may be able to form some idea of the extent of commerce for which Portland forms the ingress and ogress, and we can only regret that no statistical information can be procured showing the amount of our annual exports and imports.

The present population of Portland, as shown by the census taken especially for this ork, exhibits the number of inhabitants as follows:

Males 21 years of age and upwards	1,110
" over 10 and under 21 years	223
" of 10 years and under	488
Females 18 years of age and upwards	733
" from 10 to 18	210

Females under 10	488
Colored males	34
" females
" males and females under 10 years of age	5
Chinese males	36
" females	17
Floating population, estimated from ealeulations made from registers of hotels and boarding houses	700
Total population	1.057

Even this number, however, has been much increased by the numerous arrivals which have occurred since the foregoing census was taken, and we may safely estimate the population at present, as being fully five thousand.

But it is not in population alone that Portland has progressed. The capacious churches that adorn our city; the substantial school houses, wharves, mills, manufactories and work-shops, together with the brick buildings, stores and dwelling houses, that abound within the corporate limits, these give substantial evidences of the onward progress of Portland. Look, too, at the progress which has been made in the improvements of the streets, many of which were impassable but a few years ago, and for the benefit of our patrons we insert the scale of new grades established by the Common Council, at its meeting December 10th, 1862.

The increased value of Real Estate in Portland, is another striking evidence of its prosperity. Lots and blocks that a few years ago were considered of little or no value whatever, are now being readily disposed of at large prices, and property in any part of the business portion of the town, is sought for at almost fabulous prices. Treating upon this topic, a late number of the Daily Oregonian contains the following:

"The increase in wealth has been still greater, and what is still more encouraging, the increase both in point of population and wealth has been of a substantial and permanent character. Our wealth and population have not come to us like many other towns on this coast—here to-day and gone to-morrow—but when a resident, merchant or trader, settle down in our city, he settles to stay.

Eighteen months ago, and any number of vacant houses could be found in the city, but to-day searcely a shell can be obtained sufficient to shelter a small family, and the demand great and constantly increasing. Hents are up at an exorbitant figure, and before a house is half completed, at least a half dozen applications are made to rent the whole building or parts of it. Many houses coutain two or more families, and people are crewded and halded into every nook and corner of the city affording the least protection or shelter from the storms. There are a large number of hotels, restaurants, and boarding-houses in the city every one of which is crowded almost to overflowing. In fine, the town is full of people, and more coming in. As has been noticed by us on several former occasions, improvement city; streets graded and planked; wharfs and ware-houses stretching their gigantic proportions along the levees, and a general thrift and busy hum greets the ear or attracts the attention of a stranger upon every street and corner. Hurrah for Portland, say we."

In this connection it may not be improper to state that the Assessor's returns for 1861-2, shows the value of real and personal property in Portland, as being two millions, eightynine thousand, four bundred and twenty dollars.

The following abstract of the Assessor's roll for United States Excise Tax may not prove uninteresting, showing as it does at a glance, the several branches of business for which licenses are required, that are carried on in Portland, and also the amount of assessment in the aggregate.

The foregoing facts all tend to prove the steady progressive growth of Porland, and when we compare the vicissitudes which have marked the career of hundreds of towns on the Pacific coast, with the prosperity which has attended the career of this City, such comparisons should tend to repay us for any efforts we may have made in the past, and reinvigorate us again to prepare to enjoy the future prosperity and greatness of Porland.

TABLES OF DISTANCES.

As the mining regions of Oregon and Washington Territory will be visited during the present year by thousands of enterprising miners and traders, we append the following tabular statement of distances from Portland:

By the ocean route, the distance from San Francisco to Portland is six hundred and fiftytwo nautical miles. From Sacramento by the route traveled by the Oregou and California Stages, which leave Portland daily, the distances as measured by Mr. E. Strong, with an Odomoter, are as follows:

The foregoing route runs through the heart of the State of Oregon, and presents to the lover of beautiful scenery, a fine opportunity to feast his vision. The trip from Portland to Sacramento is made in six days during the summer and fall, and in twelve days during winter and spring.

Parties desirous of proceeding to the mines in Oregon or Washington, will be conveyed by ocean steamer from San Francisco to Portland, and from here, they will be conveyed by the river steamers to the Dalles, thence by steamers, stages, or on horse-back, as suits their fancy, to their destination.

ARTICLE III.

ELECTIONS.

Section 1. That a general election for all the officers of the corporation, required to be elected under this Act, shall be held on the first Monday of April in each year.

Sec. 2. No person shall be entitled to vote at any city election who shall not be an said election, and no person shall be eligible to any office under this Charter who is not a qualified voter of said city.

SEC. 3. At all elections for city officers the vote shall be by ballot, at the time and places designated by the City Council, and no election shall be held in any place where intoxicating liquors are vended.

SEC. 4. It shall be the duty of the City Council, before any general city election, to give at least ten days' public notice of such election, and designate the place for holding the same, and, in said notice, to nominate and appoint Inspectors of Elections; and, in cases of special elections, to give a like public notice calling the same, and specifying the officer to be elected, the time and place, and the name of the inspectors of such special elections.

SEC. 5. That all vacancies, except as hereinafter provided, shall be filled by the City Council, Sec. 6. That if by death, resignation, or otherwise, the office of Mayor or Recorder shall become vacant, a special election shall be called by the City Council to fill such vacancy or vacancies. Sec. 7. That all provisions of law, now or hereafter, regulating general elections, shall apply to and govern, so far as practicable, all elections to be made under this Charter. SEC. 8. That all elections for city officers shall continue for one day, during which the polls shall be kept open continuously from nine o'clock A. M., to six o'clock P. M., and not closed during that time under any pretense whatever.

Szc. 9. That if any inspector shall fail to attend the polls at the proper hour, or neglect to qualify, the majority of the electors present may appoint another in his stead.

Sec. 10. The person who shall have received a plurality of votes for any office, shall be declared elected, and the inspectors shall grant him a certificate of election, upon which he shall be admitted to that office: Provided, That if said election is contested, the contestant shall, within forty-eight hours after the declaration aforesaid, give notice in writing to the clerk of the Common Council of an appeal to the Common Council, and the votes cust, and the poll-books, shall, immediately after the count, be publicly scaled and be delivered to the clerk of the Common Council, and shall not be opened but by order of the Common Council, in case of contested election. The Common Council shall decide upon the rights of the claimants of any office, and their decision shall be final.

Sec. 11. Immediately upon the passage of this Act, the clerks of the legislative council shall cause a certified copy thereof to be transmitted to the county clerk of the county of Washington, who shall thereupon without delay, give ten days' public notice of the time and place which he shall designate of holding the first election to be held under this Char-The returns of said election shall be made to the said county clerk, who shall decide and declare the result and give certificates of election to the persons chosen to the several offices. The officers so chosen shall hold their office until ten days after the annual election in 1855, A. D., and until their successors are qualified.

SEC. 12. If any person elected or appointed to any city office shall remove from the city, absent himself therefrom for more than thirty days, without leave from the Common Council, or shall fail to qualify within ten days after the day of election, his office shall be deemed vacant.

ARTICLE IV.

ON THE ORGANIZATION AND POWERS OF THE COMMON COUNCIL.

SECTION 1. The Mayor, Recorder and Common Council, and all the other officers elected or appointed under this Act, shall be qualified within ten days after their election or ap pointment, and all officers required to be elected by the people under this Act, shall hold their offices for one year, and until their successors are duly qualified, the term of office to commence ten days after the annual election. Sec. 2. The members of the Common Council elect shall assemble ten days after their election, and choose a presiding officer, and some suitable person as clerk. In case of the absence of the President they may elect a President pro tempore. They shall fix the time and place of holding their stated meetings, and may be convened by the Mayor at any

PORTLAND FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The first effort toward the organization of a Fire Department for the city of Portland was made in the Spring of 1851, but no definite action was taken in the matter until the did of May following, at which time a public meeting was called, and a Fire Company organized under the appellation of Pioneer Excise Co. No. 1, who elected the following officers protein: T. J. Dryer, Foreman; D. C. Coleman, Assistant Foreman; J. B. Meer, Secretary, and W. S. Ogden, Treasurer. This company existed for several months, having thirty-seven names on the roll; but it ultimately died from inaction. Among the names of these on the list of the old PIONEER, we find the following persons who still remain citizens of Portland: A. B. Hallock, John M. Breck, A. Dodge, Geo. H. Flanders, Shubrick Nories and Dr. R. B. Wilson.

In May 1855, an ordinance was passed by the City Council, authorizing the formation of Block and Ladder Companies within the city limits. In accordance with such authority, a meeting of citizens favorable to the project was held on the 28th of July, 1853, and, inasmuch as that gathering of citizens was the nucleus from which has arisen the present efficient Fire Department of Portland, we insert the proceedings in full:

At a meeting of the citizens of Portland, held at Coffin's building on Thursday evening,

July 28th, 1853, it was

Resolved, That the organization of a Fire Department in this city is an indispensable requisite, and for this purpose the citizens generally are urged to co-operate with the Committee recommended by this meeting, by carolling themselves as active members of the Department, and by liberal donations of money to procure such means as will render the organization efficient.

Resolved, That the whole city be a district for the organization of a Hock and Ladder Company; and, further, that all that portion of the city lying north of Washington street be one district for the organization of an Engine Company, and all that part of the city lying south of said street be another district for the same purpose.

Resolved, That I. B. Smith, A. M. Starr, W. P. Abrams, S. Coffin and H. W. Davis be appointed a Committee, and requested to promptly organize a Hook and Ladder Company and solicit absorptions for procuring the necessary apparatus to render the company efficient, and that W. H. Barnhart, C. B. Pallow and D. C. Coleman be appointed a Committee and requested to organise one Engine Company in the north district, taking such steps as may be necessary to obtain possession of one of the engines, and to solicit subscriptions for such purposes as the company may vote to be requisite to render the organization efficient, and, forther, that N. Northrup, J. L. Keiser and H. S. Jacobs, be appointed a Committee, with like recommendation, for the organization of an Engine Company in the southern district.

R. M. McLAREN,

Chairman of Committee.

The following evening, (July 29th, 1853.) the Hook and Ladder Company was organized under the name of Vicinaxee Hook & Ladder Co. No. 1, and a sufficient number of names appearing on the roil, the following officers were elected: Foreman, I. B. Smith; Levistant Fareman, H. W. Davis; Secretary, Charles A. Poor; Treasurer, S. J. McCornick. The Constitution and By-Laws of the company were adopted on the evening of August 1st, 1852, at a meeting held in what was then known as the Catton House, at present the Piencer Hotel. At this meeting thirty-six names were appended to the company roil. This company were, for several months, without a house or apparatus; at length, however, fley were recognized by the city authorities, by ordinance of August 4th, 1854, since which time they have proved themselves a useful branch of the Department.

We must now take a retrospective glance at the Engine Companies, the first of which, Willserry No. 1, was organized August 3d, 1853, at which time the first regular meeting of the company was held, and at which the following officers were elected: Focusany, N. Ham; First Assistant, D. Monastes; Second Assistant, A. Strong; Secretary, A. M. Berry, and Treasurer, O. E. Williams. This company was admitted into the Department July 18th, 1854. For several months the Williamstries were compelled to use a small machine, for the use of which they were indebted to Geo. W. Vaughn, Esq., but finally in June, 1855, the City Council passed a special ordinance providing for the purchase of a fire engine for the use of the Department. The selection fell upon one of Smith's New York machines, which finally arrived at this port in August, 1856, and was awarded to the Williamettes.

The first meeting for the purpose of organizing a Fire Company for the northern portion of the city was held in August, 1853. At this meeting the name "Northerner" was deemed most suitable for the company, and was consequently adopted. The following officers were also chosen: Foreman, C. S. Silver; First Assistant, Benj. Stark; Second Assistant, D. C. Coleman, and Treasurer, Justin Steinberger. This company started with about thirty members, but in consequence of having neither house nor machine, the company soon dissolved. In August, 1856, however, another and more successful effort was made to organise a Fire Company north of Washington street. A meeting was then held, at which fiftyax names were entered on the roll. This being but a preliminary step toward an organi-*ation, no definite action was then taken; but, at a subsequent meeting, a Constitution and By-Laws were adopted. The company adopted the name of MULTNOMAH No. 2, and the following officers were elected: Foreman, B. F. Goodwin; First Assistant, L. M. Starr; Scoond Assistant, D. Monastes; President, A. M. Starr; Secretary, A. C. Ripley; Treasu-77, Thos. A. Davis. This company was admitted into the Department November 25th, 1856. Like the Willamettes, the members of Multnomah No. 2 had to be indebted to a citizen for the use of the apparatus they run with, Josiah Failing, Esq. having tendered the company the use of a small engine he was possessed of, until such time as they could procure their Hunneman machine which they contemplated sending for, and subsequently obtained in November 1857. This engine is owned by the city, but the company also Possess a smaller machine of Hunneman's make, purchased out of the company funds.

The three companies enumerated composed the Department up to June 18, 1859, at which time a movement was made toward organizing another Engine Company, and resulted its Collegen Eschus Coursan No. 3, which was organized by the election of the following effects: Forman, F. Carter; First Assistant, E. Devine; Second Assistant, Wm. Cook. Publical, Geo. Porter; Secretary, Thos. Neally; Treasurer, E. E. Kelly. This Company is located on Washington street, and is provided with a second-class Jeffers Engine, and four-wheeled Hose Carriago, together with nine hundred and fifty feet of leading hose,

In October last, the citizens residing in the southern portion of the city took measures towards organizing an Engine Company to be located in the Third Ward, and their efforts resulted in PROTECTION ENGINE CO. No. 4, which was organized on the 17th of October, and admitted into the Department November 12th, 1862.

OFFICERS OF THE DEPARTMENT FROM 1854 TO 1862.

In May, 1854, the City Council passed an ordinance organizing the Fire Department forthe city of Portland, and authorizing the election of Chief and Assistant Engineers therefor. H. W. Davis was elected the first Chief Engineer, and Shubrick Norris, Assistant. These gentlemen held their respective offices until September, 1856, at which time If. W., Davis was re-elected Chief Engineer, and Orrin Joynt, Assistant. In September, 1857, S. J. McCormick was elected Chief Engineer, and Charles Hutchins, Assistant. Mr. McCormick having resigned in consequence of absence from the city, the Council, in March, 1858, declared the office of Chief Engineer vacant, and A. M. Starr was elected. Mr. Starr, however, failed to qualify, and was elected Mayor during the following month; accordingly another election was held on the 15th of April, at which Chas. Hutchins was elected Chief Engineer; and, at a subsequent election, S. J. McCormick was elected 'Assistant. In September, 1858, J. M. Vausyckle was elected Chief Engineer, Joseph Webber, First Assistant, and F. Sherwood, Second Assistant. In 1859, Mr. Vansyckle was re-elected, with M. M. Lucas and J. A. Messenger as Assistants. In October, 1859, the cast-steel Bell for the useof the Department arrived in the City, and was placed in a tower erected on the levee at the foot of Alder Street, where it remained for some time, but was subsequently placed in the care of Willamette Engine Co. No. 1, in whose possession it at present remains. The Bell weighs one thousand and thirty-nine pounds, and, with the fixtures accompanying, cost $518 55. In 1860, Mr. Vansyckle, being about to remove from the City, resigned the office of Chief Engineer, and Joseph Webber was elected to fill the vacancy, and continued in office up to December, 1862, M. M. Lucas and A. C. Ripley being First and Second Assistant Engineers during the past year.
